Nervous Prostration
Complete Recovery by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

ONE LITTLE HOUR ERE DAY.

The while I sleeping lay
One little hour ere day,
Before my window on the tree
A swallow sang this song to me,
One little hour ere day.

Now listen to my lay,
Thy lover I betray.
The while I sing this song to thee
Another maiden kisseth he,
One little hour ere day.

Oh, me, no further say!
Ah, hush, no more betray!
Fly, swallow, from my sill away.
Ah, love and faith, a dream are they
One little hour ere day.

CHOLLY'S STORY.

It was too warm an evening, even for a smoking concert, Cholly said as he came out of his room, attired all in white, looking a perfect picture of manly beauty. Cholly was a blond specimen of the male sex, blue eyed, golden haired, a stalwart representative of the Saxon type. He was 27, well placed as regards this world's wealth and position. Life to him—thanks to old Egerton Bailey, his late father—was a pleasant pastime, the world a charmed play place, where girls worshiped him and men voted him a trump. So much for Cholly, debonair, kind hearted and handsome, who had traveled the world over, making friends wherever he went.

Cholly's prediction that it was too warm even for a smoking concert on this particular evening was verified by the slim attendance there on his arrival. Only eight men out of the 30 expected found their way to the usual rendezvous. By general agreement the music was banished, coats discarded, negligee attitudes assumed, and the eight men amused themselves by relating anecdotes and personal experiences.

"By the way, Cholly," at last a friend said to the blond Adonis, who, sprawled on a sofa, was listening quietly to the conversation, "you're very silent tonight. You've just arrived from the west too. Come, haven't you some blood curdling tale to tell us of western atrocities, cowboy 'breaks' or Coxey outrages? These fellows' stories are stale. We require something spicy to stir us up a night like this."

"Well, I did have an adventure, but its recital won't be spicy, Tracy. I don't think it will be the style you care for."

"Out with it! Out with it!" seven voices simultaneously exclaimed. "Is it a Christian Endeavor story, Cholly?" asked Tracy. "You do look awful solemn."

"No; it's a Sunday school talk," said Andy Vicars, a very young man with a new mustache and a drawl.

"All right," said Cholly quietly; "if you fellows don't be quiet, I won't tell it."

"Go on, Cholly. Don't mind the calves," grunted old Major Poole. "Tell us your story, man."

"It will interest you, major. Doubtless you remember the Donovans of Limerick—pretty Kate, they called one of them. I met them in Dublin."

"Do I remember her? May me eyes fall out of me head if I ever see her likes again—eyes like violets, hair like ink and a skin like peaches and cream. And a figger! God bless you, boys, she had a figger like a goddess. She could ride cross country like a bird. Never saw such a rider before nor since. But, Cholly, me boy, I thought you were 'gone' in that direction. Oh, the pair you'd have made!"

Cholly blushed scarlet; the company exchanged glances. "Seems to me," said Andy Vicars, "that the major's telling this story. Go on, Cholly; hold the platform." So Cholly cleared his throat, as Andy said afterward he seemed mightily upset by the major's remarks, wiped the perspiration from his flushed face and began:

"You see, fellows, my story will have to consist of two parts, the introduction and the sequel. It begins in Ireland four years ago and ends in Canada four days ago. It was in Dublin that I first met Miss Kate Donovan of Limerick. She was a stunner, as the major says, the best cross country rider I ever saw. She was poor as a church mouse and proud as Lucifer. She was an orphan; had been brought up by her uncle, old Peter Donovan. He had three daughters of his own, but none of them could hold a candle to Miss Kate herself. From what I saw during the time I was in Dublin I don't think the trio cared much for pretty Kate; they were jealous of her and took pains to show it in many petty ways, particularly when Captain Gordon, who was considered a matrimonial catch, appeared on the scene and devoted himself to Kate."

"Captain Rupert Gordon of the Forty-seventh?" queried Major Poole.

"The very same, a dark beggar, with a bad mouth and lots of money.

"Well, he was the man that set all the Dublin girls wild. They literally lionized him. He was douce enough there. He was asked everywhere, and old Peter Donovan was mad enough when he asked him for his niece and not for one of his daughters. They said the three girls never spoke to Kate for weeks.

"Poor Kate! She hardly knew what to do. She was very unhappy. She told me all about it one evening at a dance. She had a devil of a life in her uncle's house, and Gordon seemed very fond of her. She didn't know what he really was; neither did I, or I could have warned her. They were married in September. In November Gordon took her to the Riviera after the honeymoon was over. A fellow who met them there told me that Kate—that is, Mrs. Gordon—looked miserably unhappy, and people said Gordon ill treated her. However that may be, she did not stay with him very long. One day a woman appeared at the hotel where they were staying. She was a gaudily attired specimen, not overcultured. She registered as Mrs. Captain Gordon and forced herself into the Gordon private rooms. Gordon hadn't a word to say. He owned up that he had married her five years before somewhere, where his regiment was stationed—I forget where. There was a terrible scene, which ended by Kate leaving the hotel. No one knew where she went. My friend, an Englishman, who told me just what I have told you, tried to follow her and offered to do what he could for her in a monetary way. He was a gentleman and meant well by her. She refused all offers of assistance and disappeared as if the Mediterranean had swallowed her up. He heard of her again at Marseilles. She had been singing in a cafe there. She always had a passable voice and played the banjo well. Poor Kate! Her pride was dragged in the dust; her heart was broken."

Cholly paused to wipe the perspiration from his face and take a few sips from a tumbler beside him. The old major, for a wonder, kept silence, from time to time shaking his head sorrowfully.

"I suppose that is the first part of the story," broke in Andy Vicars. "It is deuced sad. Hope the little girl got back to her uncle."

"Uncle!" growled Major Poole. "Poor child! He didn't want her. He was a cruel hearted, mean old scoundrel, was Peter Donovan. He never treated the girl right when he had her."

Cholly nodded his head affirmatively to Major Poole's assertion and continued his story:

"This all happened four years ago. No one heard anything during that time of pretty Kate Donovan, for, you see, she wasn't Mrs. Gordon, after all. An aunt of hers did have the grace to write to me, making inquiries. She had heard that Kate was in the United States, in a place called Pennsylvania, and would I make inquiries, as I lived, no doubt, near there? You know, these old country people, as they call themselves, think that the United States are about as large as an English county."

"Do I know it?" interrupted the major. "Why, a lady in London once asked me to personally deliver a small parcel of china to her daughter because I lived in New York, near where her daughter was settled. I took the parcel, thinking to see the address of some street here. Where do you think the fair creature lived?"

"New Jersey?" hazarded Vicars.

"Maine?" queried another.

"No!" roared the major. "Idaho!"

"Guess you didn't accept the commission, major," said Cholly.

"Well, no. I relieved my mind by reciting sundry words not in Webster's Dictionary. Go on, my boy. Tell us all you know of pretty Kate Donovan."

"I came through Canada on my way from the west a few days ago," continued Cholly. "We changed cars at a place not far from Toronto and had some hours to wait for connection. Strolling around, I came to a place where a circus was in full swing—double tent, side shows, all complete. Consulting my watch, I found I had time to see the performance. An English steeplechase was advertised as the chief attraction. It had just commenced when I took my seat in the first row, close to the ring. I can hardly tell you my feelings when I recognized the first lady rider who entered. It was Kate Donovan."

"Good heavens!" ejaculated the major. "Come to that?"

"Yes; it was Kate, graceful, lithe, nervy as ever, looking like a queen among those painted judys and rough men."

"How could you sit there and see it?" groaned Major Poole.

"I hadn't to sit long. I recognized her instantly, and, poor girl, she saw me!"

"Knew you?" gasped the major.

"Yes; she turned palo under the horrible paint and rouge she was daubed with. Somehow she seemed to lose her nerve all of a sudden. The horse, a vicious black beast, swerved to one side suddenly—major, fellows, I cannot tell it, it was too horrible."

"Kate Donovan to lose her nerve on horseback? I cannot credit it," said the major in an awed tone.

"I was in the ring and by her side in a moment," Cholly continued, not noticing the major's interruption. "She knew me, poor girl, when her eyes opened for the first time. She died with her hands tightly clasped in mine."

"Did she sa-ay anything?" asked Andy Vicars. "Did she tell you anything?"

"If she did, you're not the one I'd repeat it to," said Cholly fiercely. "The last words of a poor dying girl are hardly club talk, not if I know it."

So saying, Cholly seized his coat and strode angrily from the room.

The other men looked at each other significantly.

"He's hit hard," said the major. "Poor fellow! If you had seen Kate, you'd not blame him. I always thought he liked her."

And Cholly, as he strode along the street homeward, cursed his own folly in telling the story of pretty Kate to such an audience. "As if they cared," he muttered. They were a set of hard hearted, cold, cynical men, and he (Cholly) was a fool for telling the story. Somehow he had never realized before that he had cherished an ideal for the past four years, and that ideal was the woman who but a few days before had died in his arms. Tell that idiot Vicars what she said? Cholly smiled grimly as the thought struck him, for only he knew what those last words had been. They echoed in his ears even now in the din and noise of the New York evening:

"Cholly, dear—dear Cholly!"

If she had only said them four years ago, he thought miserably as he shoved his key into the latch of his home door.

MEN WORSE THAN APES.

Revolting Customs of Some of the African Canuibal Tribes.

The cannibalism of the black secret society known as the Human Leopards in the country near Sierra Leone brings forcibly before us the difference between the east African and west African habits of eating human flesh. The Sherbo cannibals waylaid and killed their victims and afterward feasted on their flesh. The cannibalism of the east coast is of a very different kind. The flesh of the old people—the grandfather and grandmother of a family—is dried and mixed with condiments, and a portion of this is offered, with a dim sort of sacramental meaning, to travelers who become guests of the family. To refuse it would be a deadly insult. To accept it is a passport to the privileged position of a friend of the house. Many of our travelers in east Africa have eaten thus sacramentally of the ancestors of some dark skinned potentate.

The cannibalism of the west coast is of a more horrible kind, connected with fetichism, the worst developments of which are peculiar to that country. But there is a hideously genuine appetite for fresh human flesh still existing among the negroes of west Africa. This cannibalism manifests itself in a refinement of gluttony which has its mild analogy in the tastes of Europeans. Young boys are bought from the dark interior, kept in pens, fattened upon bananas and finally killed and baked. To these Thyestean feasts come not only the savage chiefs of the interior, but also, it is whispered, black merchants from the coast. Men who appear at their places of business in English territory in broadcloth and tall hats, who ape the manners of their white masters, are said to disappear annually into the interior, where, we are told, they might be seen in naked savagery taking part in the banquets on plump boys, in which they delight.

Be this as it may, somehow the native of the west coast and its Hinterland is unlike the East or South African native in the deep lying savagery and the extraordinary facility for returning to it which are his leading and very unpleasant characteristics. The subject claims the attention of the anthropologist, and certainly suggests a curious reason for questioning the relationship of the black man and the ape or the gorilla, seeing that the race of monkeys seems to be singularly free from anything like cannibalism.—London Saturday Review.

HOLES IN THE CANVAS.

An Important Discovery Increasing the Efficacy of Sails.

An Italian sea captain, Gio Batta Vasallo of Genoa, has made a very interesting innovation in the use of sails of ordinary sailing vessels. He claims that the force of wind cannot fully take effect in a sail, since the air in front of it cannot properly circulate in the inflated part and remains stationary immediately in front of part of the sail proper. He avoids this stagnation of air, as he calls it, by the application of a number of small holes in that part of the sail where the depression is deepest when it is filled. These holes are re-enforced like a buttonhole, so that they will not tear out.

Trials made in various weather have resulted as follows: With a light wind a boat with ordinary sails made 4 knots, while the new sail increased the speed to 5¼ knots. In a fresh breeze the respective speeds were 7 and 8¾ knots, and in a strong wind they were 8 and 10 knots an hour. It stands to reason that the doing away with a layer of air which cannot escape past the sides of a sail must increase the efficiency of the sailboat. Where the wind formerly struck a cushion of air which acted like a spring mattress, decreasing the actual pressure of the wind against the canvas, this current of air now strikes the sail direct and of course has a greater efficiency. Vasallo has received much encouragement from practical sailors as well as theoretical scientists.—Philadelphia Record.

Football In Africa.

Englishmen are proverbial for taking their games with them into whatever part of the world they go. Golf, as we know, is played in the shadow of the pyramids and in the very heart of the Himalayas, but football in the middle of darkest Africa is something of an innovation. Yet football is rapidly becoming popular on the shores of Lake Nyassa, and at Kotakota, which a few years ago was notorious as the greatest depot for slaves on the western shore of the lake, mixed teams of black and white meet every Saturday with as much regularity as do our home teams, though the local chronicler omits to say whether Rugby or Association has won the suffrages of the Nyassa teams. One startling feature of the game is that the black players decline to hamper themselves with boots and find apparently no inconvenience in playing with bare feet.—London Cor. Manchester Guardian.

Brevet Rank.

The story is told of a soldier of the Army of the Potomac who had his own ideas as to his financial value, as well as the method by which that value could be realized.

He was a white man and was detailed for service as a teamster in a train which was driven for the most part by negroes. The negroes were hired at the rate of $25 per month, but the white soldier received no more than his regular pay of $16.

He appeared somewhat dissatisfied with this arrangement and made an application to his captain.

"I should like," he said gravely, "to be appointed a negro by brevet, and be assigned to duty in accordance with my brevet rank!"—Youth's Companion.

INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, FEBRUARY 29, 1896.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR.

SWINNERTON is doing as much to crystallize public opinion concerning the Funding Bill as all of the Examiner editors put together. Johnson makes an admirable cur and is used to advantage by the artist to fill up the low places. If Sacramento had put him in a sack and used him to ballast the levee the State would be better off and Johnson would be in his element—mud.

THE first issue of Mr. Walter Stead's "Penny Novels" is "She." These novels are of course very cheapily gotten up and are condensed. Four hundred thousand copies of this edition have been sold. "She" may well stand condensation, but there are novels that are just as much works of art as Raphael's "Madonna" or St. Peter's at Rome," to cut which in any way would be to mar their beauty.

IN the United States during the past thirteen years there have been 14,390 strikes which affected 69,167 establishments and threw out of employment 3,714,406 men and women. Forty per cent. of these strikes succeeded, wholly or in part. The wage loss to employees through strikes and lockouts during the same period was $190,493,882 and the loss to employers was $94,825,837. From these figures it will be seen that strikes are rather expensive luxuries.

EVERYONE who has the welfare of professional education at heart is thankful that the Regents of the State University have selected the plans of buildings for the Affiliated Colleges. However, it is evident from the vote of acceptance that the plans finally adopted were in the nature of a compromise. There were three ballots, the successful plan receiving one vote and none on the first and second ballots respectively. It is to be hoped that the work will soon commence and that California may soon see her Colleges of Medicine, Law, Pharmacy, Dentistry and Veterinary Surgery properly housed.

IT seems that the prominent society women of the East are learning the game of billiards. Some of them are quite proficient. But this is not the most interesting feature of the fad. We are told that Mrs. John Jacob Astor's devotion to the game is so great that she herself saw to the planning of the billiard-room in her new Fifth Avenue home. This is startling. What is to become of home life when mothers plan rooms. Who ever heard of such a preposterous idea! It is to be feared that Mrs. Astor is really becoming altogether too new. The next thing that we hear will probably be that she is planning some happy surprise for her family.

NEW YORK is suffering at the hands of a big coal and railroad trust. She intends to defeat the trust in a novel way. The coal is to be piped just as oil is piped. It will be ground into powder and then mixed in proportion of four parts dust and six parts water. This could be pumped easily. When this mixture is delivered from the mines to the city it will be allowed to settle. The water is then drawn off. For steaming purposes the coal in this condition is better than in the lump. For domestic use the dust will be compressed into bricks. By experiment the plan has been found to work well. New York City consumes twenty thousand tons of coal a day or about six million tons a year. One two-foot pipe will carry this quantity. The cost of transportation will be but about one-fifth of the present rate.

OLD AND NEW SONOMA

Something About Its Political History from 1835 Up to the Present Time.

Judge F. Breitenbach, one of Sonoma's oldest residents, and who has been honored with many positions of public trust by her residents has compiled with a great deal of care a political history of the town, which will be read with interest not only by the people of Sonoma county but elsewhere in the State. The article should be preserved for future reference, as it contains valuable data, much of which has been secured from the old archives of the former city of Sonoma. The writer says:

Sonoma Valley was first settled by the Fathers of the Mission, "San Francisco de Solano."

About twelve years later, in 1835, the Mexican Government secularized all the missions in Upper California, or Alta California, and General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo, who at that time lived at the big adobe house in Petaluma Valley, was ordered to lay out and establish a Pueblo (town) in Sonoma Valley. He layed out the present Plaza and one block of lots around it. He did not have the proper instruments, only a pocket-compass and Indians to assist him; in consequence the sides of the Plaza are not at right angles.

During the war with Mexico United States troops occupied California and in 1847 there were quartered in Sonoma General Smith with his Staff, Colonel Joseph Hooker with his regiment of dragoons and Captain Frisbie with two companies of New York Volunteers. The year previous American settlers, who were not aware that war had broken out with Mexico, had raised the Bear Flag at Sonoma, on the place where the big flag-pole now stands, as an independent declaration of defiance to the Mexicans, who intended to drive all American settlers out of California.

The old Bear Flag pole was only a single stick of redwood, the present staff was erected by United States soldiers. At that time there were more people in Sonoma than in Yerba Buena, now San Francisco, and it was generally thought that Sonoma would in time be a big city, and in anticipation of this, it would be necessary to enlarge the survey.

But the people would not agree upon the mode of extending Gen. Vallejo's survey, and M. W. Boggs, ex-Governor of Missouri, who had been appointed the first American Alcalde for the Northern District of California, applied to Colonel Mason at Monterey, then the Military Governor of California, for instructions. Governor Mason appointed Jacob R. Snyder and a Mr. Murphy Commissioners to investigate the matter and report to him. Upon the recommendation of these Commissioners Governor Mason instructed Alcalde Boggs to correct the old map and extend the survey of Gen. Vallejo by leaving the Plaza as it then was, and running new lines of streets North and South at right angles to the Plaza and the lines of streets East and West parallel with the Plaza. Alcalde Boggs engaged Jasper O'Farrell and J. M. Hudspeth, surveyors, to resurvey the Pueblo according to these instructions and make a map thereof. Accordingly Hudspeth did the field work and O'Farrell the plotting, and the O'Farrell map is now the official map of Sonoma and is deposited in the Recorder's office of Sonoma county.

The survey was made in 1848. The bearings are as follows: Broadway N. 8 degrees 15 minutes W; sides of the plaza, N. 6 degrees no minutes W.; cross streets, N. 81 degrees, 45 minutes E. One block of four small lots contains 8 acres, 1 rood and no perches; out lots marked X contain 31 acres, 2 roods and 26 perches; out lots marked W contain 39 acres, 1 rood and no perches; out lots marked Y contain 23 acres, 3 roods and 7 perches; out lots marked Z contain 27 acres, 3 roods and 4 perches.

At the first session of the Legislature of the State of California on April 4, 1850, Sonoma was incorporated as a city, the limits included all the out lots. Sonoma was also made the County Seat of the counties of Sonoma and Mendocino combined and remained such until 1854. The officers of the city were the Mayor, five Councilmen, a Marshal, Assessor, Clerk, City Attorney and Treasurer. The City of Sonoma became the successor of the former Pueblo of Sonoma, and as such succeeded to the right of not more than four leagues of land which the Mexican Government had granted to every Pueblo in California.

The following gentlemen have served as Mayors: John Cameron, M. G. Vallejo, Robt. Hopkins, G. M. Miller, Sam R. Bright, Israel Brockman, Antony Oaks, M. G. Vallejo, H. L. Lidstrom and D. Cook.

By the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo the United States Government agreed to recognize and approve all the valid grants of land in California made prior to said treaty, not only to the Pueblos but also to private individuals by the Mexican Government. In order to carry out this provision it was found necessary by the United States Government to appoint three Land Commissioners, sitting in San Francisco, whose duty it was to examine all such grants, and either reject or approve them, the party aggrieved having the right to appeal to the United States District Court and Supreme Court.

In 1852 the City of Sonoma through her attorney, Robt. Hopkins, brought her claim before the Land Commissioners, claiming the land lying between and bordered by the hills north of town, Agua Caliente Creek, Sonoma Creek and the Arroyo Seco, comprising about one and three quarters leagues. The claim was confirmed by the Land Commissioners January 22nd, 1856. They had previously confirmed M. G. Vallejo's grant of fifteen leagues of land between Petaluma Creek and Sonoma Creek.

In September, 1860, there appeared in Sonoma A. A. Green, a San Francisco attorney, who at a meeting of citizens called at the old Union Hotel told the people that Sonoma was entitled to full four leagues of land; that the land west of Sonoma Creek as far as the tops of the hills rightly belonged to and was part of the Pueblo.

This created quite an excitement and at the next meeting of the City Council it was resolved to dismiss Judge D. O. Shattuck as attorney for the city in the land case and engage A. A. Green and Judge McCabe instead. From the time that an appeal was taken from the decision of the Land Commissioners to the United States District Court there were two hostile camps in Sonoma which on several occasions engaged in open brawls.

While this suit was pending in the United States District Court the Board of Councilmen of Sonoma were informed by the Clerk of the Court that their attorney was neglecting the case. It was even suspected that he had sold out to the opposite party. Mr. Green was therefore promptly discharged and J. D. Creigh was appointed as attorney of record in the case. This occurred in March 1861, and in order to raise the sinews of war the City Council sold the hilly land west of the Cemetery in different lots.

The following year there came a great surprise to the City Council. It was like a thunderclap from a clear sky. The opposition headed by Gen. Vallejo and his attorney, Geo. L. Wratten, had engineered a bill through the Legislature, unbeknown to the City Council, whereby the charter of the City of Sonoma was repealed. This gave great satisfaction to a majority of the people of Sonoma, inasmuch as there was now no plaintiff in the land case and the settlers on the land west of Sonoma Creek, who had bought their land in good faith and had made improvements thereon, would not be further disturbed. Even if Sonoma had gained this additional land and sold the same, the money so received would have been foolishly squandered in unnecessary lawsuits and in other unbusiness-like undertakings. For instance when there happened to be a few hundred dollars in the City's Treasury the City Council would loan out this money to an applicant upon giving his promissory note with two per cent interest per month. In most instances this would be the last seen of the money. When the old City Council was legislated out of office it left nothing behind in the shape of public improvements. The streets of the city were in the same condition as nature had made them, in fact there was nothing to show what had been done with the money received from the sale of lots and lands or gathered from taxes collected, except an indebtedness of twelve hundred dollars.

By that Act of the Legislature, approved April 26th, 1862, disincorporating the City of Sonoma, it was provided that three Trustees should be elected, whose duty should be to carry out contracts entered into by the former City Council, to pay off and liquidate the indebtedness, to declare which of the city streets should remain public highways and county roads and to sell those streets not so needed. The Legislature considered that residents of Sonoma would be better qualified to select the streets to be declared county roads than the Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county, whose duty it was, and is, to lay out county roads, etc. The Trustees elected were D. O. Shattuck, Col. John Walton and Dennis Beahan. They performed the duty faithfully without compensation, except expenses necessarily incurred. They also dismissed the appeal from the decision of the United States District Court to the United States Supreme Court already taken by the former City Council.

The Trustees above named declared and ordered that all streets and parts of streets at the time inclosed were not necessary for county roads and should be sold and quit-claim deeds be given to the purchasers, the owners of adjoining lots having the preference. Although the provision in the Act of the Legislature was not strict law, the property holders acquiesced in the declaration and order of the Board of Trustees, and although the declaration amounted only to an abandonment of certain streets the people generally approved of the order, as otherwise the money necessary for the payment of the ex-city's indebtedness would have to be raised by direct taxation, and thereby saved the salary of an Assessor and Collector.

The Trustees having finished the labor of their trust turned all books and papers over to the proper authority to receive them on November 23rd, 1864. About the same time the United States District Court rendered its final decree confirming the decision of the Land Commissioners and declaring the exterior boundaries of the Pueblo Grant to be as follows: In the west Sonoma and Agua Caliente Creeks; in the east the Arroyo Seco; in the south a line from the Trancas in Sonoma Creek to the high water mark in the Schell Creek and in the north a line extending from the apex of a prominent hill lying north from the N. W. corner of lot 544, to the house on the Buena Vista ranch in an easterly direction, and by the shortest way from said hill to the Agua Caliente Creek in an easterly direction. This northern boundary line so defined by the United States District Court caused a great deal of annoyance and delay in making the Pueblo survey in later years. There are three prominent hills north of Sonoma, the Vallejo hill, Battery hill and the Jones hill. It was always understood that Battery hill, being the most prominent of the three hills and the nearest to the town, was one of the land-marks, and it was also the intention of the District Court to make it so. The hill is called Battery hill from the fact that General Vallejo had two old cannons placed there for the protection of the town. However, the Court was misled by the map of the Pueblo filed in the Court as an exhibit. This map was a copy of the O'Farrell map made by John A. Brewster, who was at one time Surveyor General of California, and lithographed in New York. Brewster had made the mistake of sketching the hills north of Sonoma from memory and had placed Battery hill, instead of north from the N. W. corner of lot 307, about six hundred yards further east. Such a line does neither strike Battery hill, Jones hill or any other prominent hill.

The Sonoma Pueblo Grant had been finally confirmed by the United States District Court, but something more had to be done to settle the matter. The grant had to be surveyed for its exterior boundaries and a patent from the United States applied for. In the absence of any municipal authority to perform such duties the Legislature was petitioned to provide a remedy. In 1868 the Legislature in response to such petition appointed three Pueblo Commissioners, namely Jacob R. Snyder, John Walton and Geo. L. Wratten, who were empowered to survey said boundary line according to the decree of the United States District Court, to procure a patent for the Sonoma Pueblo Grant and to sell any of its land then unsold, and if the proceeds from the sale of such lands were not sufficient to pay the current expenses of the Commission to levy and collect a tax not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Already during the first year of their office the Pueblo Commissioners experienced great difficulty in finding and establishing the northern boundary line as described in the decree of the United States District Court. The line running north from the N. W. corner of lot 544 not striking one of those prominent hills heretofore mentioned, the Commissioners thought that the hill nearest to said bearing was meant in said deree. This was the Jones hill, and the Commissioners in accordance with their construction of said decree, had a line surveyed from the house on the Buena Vista ranch to the Jones hill and from there to the Agua Caliente Creek.

This line was protested by D. Jones and M. Nathanson, two of the settlers on the Government land which adjoined the line. There was a contest before the Surveyor General between the parties named and the settlers came out first best. This disgusted the Pueblo Commissioners so much that they did not do anything further in the matter during their term of office of four years, nor was there anything done for six more years. Of course this state of things could not go on, and the people of Sonoma in 1878 asked the Legislature to appoint three new Pueblo Commissioners. This time the choice fell on Otto Schetter, John Tivnen and G. T. Paull. The last named Commissioner having died during the term of his office E. E. Morse was appointed to fill the vacancy. These new Commissioners experienced as much annoyance as their predecessors, but they succeeded in having the boundary lines of the Pueblo surveyed to the satisfaction of the Surveyor General, and in time a patent was issued to them in trust for the parties who had bought their lots or lands from the municipal authorities, signed by President R. B. Hayes on March 31st, 1880, releasing any and all claims of the United States to the lands embraced in the grant to the Pueblo of Sonoma. It was a great relief to the property owners, as now they felt sure to have a title to their lots and land.

Every since the City Charter had been repealed the town or village of Sonoma was a part of Sonoma road district, and although here was the center of population and the most road taxes were paid here, the roads in and through Sonoma were neglected by the Board of Supervisors and Roadmaster and the other roads were preferred. How to remedy this evil was the problem of the time. Our opportunity came in 1883 when the Legislature passed a general act in conformity with the new Constitution adopted in 1879, under and by which a territory in this State, having a sufficient population, might be incorporated as a municipal corporation.

Judge G. A. Johnson at the time represented Sonoma county in the Senate, and as soon as the Act had been passed he sent a copy of it to Henry Weyl. The late A. F. Haraszthy, Henry Weyl and Judge Breitenbach consulted together and it was decided that it would be to the best interest of Sonoma to again form a municipal corporation, that the same should include only the small lots as far south as Germany street and also Mountain Cemetery. The out lots being of thirty-two acres of farming land, formerly included in the Pueblo or city, were left out from the boundary for obvious reasons. Judge Breitenbach then drew up a petition to the Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county to order an election in said territory whether the electors thereof desired to have a municipal government or not. The election was held and the affirmative of the question was carried by over a three-fourths majority of the votes cast.

The election returns were approved by the Supervisors of Sonoma county September 3rd, 1883, and by them filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and from that time Sonoma became a municipal corporation of the sixth class under the name of the "City of Sonoma." The government consisted of five Trustees, who elected one member of its Board President, a Clerk, who also serves as Assessor, a Marshal and Collector, and a Treasurer.

The gentlemen who have served as Presidents of the Board of Trustees including the present incumbent, are Ed. Wegner, A. F. Haraszthy, Chas. McHarvey, Robert A. Poppe, Henry Weyl, Henry J. Seipp and Julius E. Poppe. Under such local government Sonoma has prospered, our streets and sidewalks are in tolerable good condition, we have a Volunteer Fire Department, a Municipal Building, a beautiful Park, and the Public Cemetery contains a Public Receiving Vault. Sonoma ranks with any country town of its size in the State of California

A. W. Foster Re-Elected President.

At the annual election of officers of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway, held in San Francisco last Tuesday afternoon, A. W. Foster was re-elected President and P. N. Lilienthal Vice-President. The following directors were chosen to serve for the year 1896: A. W. Foster, A. Markham, Geo. A. Newhall, P. N. Lilienthal, A. Borel, J. B. Stetson and John L. Howard. Sydney V. Smith aspired to the Presidency of the road but was defeated. This leaves the road in the hands of President Foster and no changes among the employees are likely to happen.

RUNAWAY BOYS.

Found by their Mammas and Taken Home and Spanked.

Three youngsters, whose ages vary between ten and fifteen years, ran away from their homes in San Francisco last Monday. The lads were traced to Sonoma, where they were found camping out in the suburbs of town in regular brigand style, being armed with a rifle and other weapons. On Thursday the mother and sister of two of the boys arrived in town and commenced a search for the young rascals. With the aid of a couple of the town boys the runaways were soon discovered. They were squatting around a camp fire in Poppe's field. They were taken completely by surprise and one of the lads took to his heels, but was run down and captured. Two of them were then turned over to their mammas who left on the afternoon train for San Francisco, vowing when they reached home to give the young gamins a good spanking. The other lad was left behind and in sole possession of the camp, his mother failing to come after him. The parents of two of the boys refused to give their names, the other was Essie Estes, formerly of this place.

A Rash Youth.

Ed. Sweeney, a law student in the San Francisco office of Dennis Spencer, and a member of the minstrel troupe which held forth in this place last Saturday evening, on Sunday afternoon last wantonly smashed one of the windows in the glass door of Hotz's dry goods store. The act was witnessed by a number of our citizens, who notified Deputy Marshal Stockwell, who placed Sweeney under surveillance until Mr. Hotz was notified. Judge Cheney's office was visited by the latter and as he was about to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Sweeney the young gent made his appearance and was allowed to depart for his city home on paying $2.50 damages. We opine that Sweeney will have a care when he again visits Sonoma. We may be jays up this way in the eyes of the fly city youngsters, but for all that it does not make us so. Hereafter Sonoma and its people are not going to stand any foolishness. See!

High School Trustees and the Teachers' Institute.

An adjourned meeting of the Trustees of the High School will be held in the College building this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The regular quarterly meeting of the Trustees will take place on the first Saturday in April. At the meeting to-day the Trustees will discuss the proposition of securing the Teachers' Institute for Sonoma, which will convene some time in May. The Trustees invite the general public to be present and participate in the discussion.

The Home Merchant.

"Who is the home merchant?" He is the man who helps pay for the streets upon which you walk; for the schools in which your children and perhaps you were educated; he helps keep up the church in which you worship. He builds a home which enhances the value of your property. Every subscription paper that is passed has his name on it; he is the one who cannot afford to swindle you. Self-interest, if nothing else, would prevent this. He bears his share of the burden of good government and lays with you in sunshine and darkness; in days of prosperity and aversity. These are but few of the reasons why your patronage should be given to the home merchant."—Ex.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

SONOMA WANTS TO ENTERTAIN THE SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The Meeting Thursday Evening—A Big Petition to be Presented to School Supintendent Davis.

Come on ye teachers, old and young,
And taste our merry cheer;
Our latch strings all are outward hung,
We'll kill the fatted steer.

A number of representative citizens of this city met in Union Hall, Thursday evening, for the purpose of taking definite steps to secure the next Sonoma County Teachers' Institute for this place. Mr. Robert Poppe was chosen Chairman and Mr. R. M. Sims Secretary.

Upon motion the Chairman was directed to appoint a committee of five to wait upon Supt. E. W. Davis and formally invite him to name Sonoma as the place for holding the Institute this year.

The following were appointed by Chairman Robert Poppe: M. K. Cady, Robt. Howe, P. H. Thompson, R. M. Sims and W. E. Thomas. They will immediately visit Santa Rosa and present to the Superintendent the petition that has been circulated during the past two or three days. Though the time has been short between one and two hundred citizens have signed their names and without doubt every man, woman and child would do so were the opportunity offered.

During the meeting the heartiest good will prevailed. Not a single doubt was expressed as to our ability to entertain the teachers. Those who can't find accomodations at the hotels will be cared for in the homes of our citizens, some of whom have generously offered their rooms rent free.

The customary reduction in railroad fares has been guaranteed. It must also be remembered that two railroads connect this place with the rest of the county. Not one, as in the case with Healdsburg. And when it comes to affording amusement we can beat any city north of San Francisco and west of Sacramento. We can furnish anything from a comic Irish song to "O, Promise Me!" and from a "Box of Monkeys" to "The Merchant of Venice."

At the time the Institute will be held this valley will be a garden of Eden. It will be in the very bloom of Spring, and from one end to the other sweet flowers will beckon the teachers to forget the cares of life and still his or her tired nerves.

For moonlight drives who can suggest a more inviting spot than this "Valley of the Moon." Here can the happy teacher live o'er the romantic dreams of her noon-time musings, drink in the sweet air kissed by the wild flowers and orange groves, and sigh for such a place in which to die.

We want the Teachers' Institute and we are going to have it before long. The instructions to the Committee were to "See Healdsburg and go her one better."

Y. M. I. Ball.

The Young Mens' Institute of this place entertained their friends at Union Hall on Friday evening of last week in honor of Institute day. The large hall had been prettily decorated, the floor well waxed and Parke' orchestra furnished delightful music. At a late hour all sat down to the heavy laden tables in the dining room adjoining the hall. Altogether this party was a very enjoyable one and it was well along toward daylight before the last couple left the hall, each hoping that the Institute boys would ere long give another of these pleasant affairs.

Pursued by a Demon.

How many suicides, think you, reader, have been committed by persons driven distraught and hunted to their doom by the demon of chronic ill health? Countless. For instance, we know, do we not, that hypochondriasis is a monomania—a sort of minor madness produced by chronic dyspepsia? Again, insomnia, or sleeplessness, often a result of the same cause, culminates in a derangement of the reasoning faculties. It is, therefore, of momentous consequence to prevent the arrival of disease at its chronic phase, when it daily and nightly scourges the sufferer to a dangerously uncertain goal. No medicine known to science, as a means of arresting the maladies to which it is adopted, exists equal to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among these complaints are chronic indigestion and insomnia, kidney and rheumatic ailments, constipation and liver trouble. Appetite is improved by the Bitters, the blood fertilized, and bodily substance and vigor increased by it.

THE WIND THAT SHAKES THE BARLEY.

Sing hey for the wind in the barley green,
And the great clouds drifting over;
For the dear brown sails, far out, that lean
To the kiss of the sea, their lover.

Sing hey for the fields of barley green,
With the mad wind rushing over;
And hey for the path that runs between
Where my dearest waits for her lover.

THE BLOND BRAKEMAN'S STORY.

It May Be Read With Profit by Present Day Record Breakers.

The Railroad club met Tuesday evening in the usual place, and after a short business session the boys drifted into "shop" conversation. The fast run of the general manager's special from Hope to Missoula was commented on, and the talk on fast runs became general. Several stories of remarkable time made on different occasions were related, and when the blond brakeman got the floor he saw he was expected to break the record. And he did.

"Speaking of fast runs," said he, "why, that little Montana Union line lays over anything I ever saw. No Dutch clocks or anything else to hold a man down there. I worked for that road when Bob Smith was dispatcher, and when he told the boys to 'wheel 'em' we all knew what it meant. One day we were going north and were delayed in various ways until we reached Stewart. Bob wired the con. at that point that he wanted our train to get to Garrison just as quick as God would let us. We had a clear track when we started, and it wasn't long before the telegraph poles looked like a picket fence. The biggest burst of speed was reserved for the home stretch—from Deer Lodge to Garrison—11 miles. We didn't stop at Deer Lodge, but as we approached that place the engineer sounded the whistle as usual, and you may take my head for a football if the 'slow' sign in the Garrison yards wasn't passed by our train before that whistle had ceased to sound."

This made the boys look weary, but the "braky" hadn't finished yet. He continued:

"Well, we put our train away and were resting ourselves when we glanced up the track and saw a dark streak approaching at a lightning gait. We were astounded for an instant, but as it slowed up we readily recognized it as the shadow of the train we had just brought in."

And the boys all rose up, and after presenting the relator with a regularly signed license the club adjourned.—Missoula Silverite.

A Beginning In Literature.

For my first effort to sail the sea of letters it occurs to me that I ought to say that my father's literary reputation cannot be held responsible.

I had reached (to take a step backward in the story) the mature age of 13. I was a little girl in low necked gingham dresses. I know, because I remember I had on one (of a purple shade and incredibly unbecoming to a half grown, brunette girl) one evening when my first gentleman caller came to see me. I felt that the fact that he was my Sunday school teacher detracted from the importance of the occasion, but did not extinguish it. It was perhaps 8:30, and, obediently to law and gospel, I had gone up stairs.

The actual troubles of life have never dulled my sense of mortification at overhearing from my little room at the head of the stairs, where I was struggling to get into that gingham gown and present a tardy appearance, a voice distinctly excusing me on the ground that it was past her usual bedtime and she had gone to bed. Whether the anguish of that occasion so far aged me that it had anything to do with my first literary undertaking I cannot say, but I am sure about the low necked gingham dress, and that it was during this particular year that I determined to become an individual and contribute to The Youth's Companion.

I did so. My contribution was accepted and paid for by the appearance in my father's postoffice box of the paper for a year, and my impression is that I wore high necked dresses pretty soon thereafter and was allowed to sit up till 9 o'clock. At any rate, these memorable events are distinctly intertwined in my mind.—Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in McClure's Magazine.

Uncertainty and Certainty.

Two men met unexpectedly in the corridor of a down town office building.

"Hold on, William! What's your hurry? How are you? You look worried. Anything wrong?"

"Not much, but, to tell you the truth, I've just left ——, and I can't tell whether he has lied to me or not. How are things with you?"

"So so. I've just had a big disappointment, that's all."

"You take it easily."

"Think so? I've had a deal on hand for three months, and I expected to close it out today, but this morning the other party told me frankly that his principals couldn't take it up. Now it's off my mind and I'm glad of it."

"Sure there's no funny business?"

"Sure."

"I wish I was. So long."

One man smiled and the other scowled.—New York Times.

Paul Louis Courier, when bitterly assailed by a French professor, quietly remarked: "I fancy he must be vexed. He calls me Jacobin, rebel, plagiarist, thief, poisoner, forger, leper, madman, impostor, calumniator, libeler, a horrible, filthy, grimacing ragpicker. I gather what he wants to say. He means that he and I are not of the same opinion, and this is his only way of putting it."

The war with France lasted from July 9, 1798, to Sept. 30, 1800, and the number of men engaged, in the naval force alone, was 4,593. The land forces raised for this campaign cut no figure.

$1800.00 GIVEN AWAY TO INVENTORS.

$250.00 every month given away to any one who applies through us for the most meritorious patent during the month preceding.
We secure the best patents for our clients, and the object of this offer is to encourage inventors to keep track of their bright ideas. At the same time we wish to impress upon the public the fact that such as the "car-window" which can be easily slid up and down without breaking the passenger's back, "sauce-pan," "collar-button," "nut-lock," "bottle-stopper," and a thousand other little things that most any one can find a way of improving; and these simple inventions are the ones that bring largest returns to the author. Try to think of something to invent.

IT IS NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice in the "National Recorder," published at Washington, D. C., which is the best newspaper published in America in the interests of inventors. We furnish a year's subscription to this journal, free of cost, to all our clients. We also advertise, free of cost, the invention each month which wins our $250 prize, and hundreds of thousands of copies of the "National Recorder," containing a sketch of the winner, and a description of his invention, will be scattered throughout the United States among capitalists and manufacturers, thus bringing to their attention the merits of the invention.
All communications regarded strictly confidential. Address
